

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method for echo cancellation that detects and tracks the active regions of the echo channel impulse response rather than the entire echo channel impulse response and uses this sparse model to cancel the echo component of the received signal.

5 Two sets of filter coefficients are used, one to remove and track the active regions and one to detect the active regions.